China Asks Permanent Council Seat

Puts Forth Claim As Largest Country Of Asia, With Fourth Of World's Population, Ancient Culture And Unlimited Resources

Germany's Admission To Be First Matter Considered; British Press Still Storming With Protests Against Stand

Geneva, March 5.—China has formally applied for a permanent seat on the Council of the League of Nations.

China's application for a permanent Membership of the League Council, signed by Mr. Chu Chao-hsin, says that the Chinese Government in formulating the request takes the stand on the international status quo and the importance of China compared with other Powers. The Chinese Government further anything but an informal disconsiders that such representation cussion, particularly as those of China, a Power which occupies who did attend, were against the greatest area of the Asiatic |a formal session of the new Continent, possesses a quarter of body. the total population of the globe, disposes of unlimited resources, Chung-hui is being approached has considerable economic to accept the post of Minister of power, and has distinguished Foreign Affairs by Premier Chia, itself by its ancient traditional who has again received the refusal Debate In House; Gilbert culture, could only enhance the of Dr. W.W. Refuses To Negotiate With Strike Committee: Holds Government Responsible: Warns Of Treaty Violations; Hidden Threat Of Military Action

United Press Staff Correspondent Hongkong, February 22.-The present anti-British boycott inchang in Early Attack stituted by Canton and the province of Kwangtung against the Hongkong colony has placed the anese Flags; Authorities colony in probably the most pre-Protest; Battle at Yung carious situation in the threequarters of a century of its existence.

British efforts to conciliate the Chinese so that trade may be resumed all have ended in failure. or six months the Chinese in the Kwangtung area have maintained a solid front against all things British and have punished severely any of their own countrymen they found trading with the British or working for them in any way. For these reasons many British have come to the conclusion that force is the only measure left to them. Others disagree with this and declare that while it might be possible to force Canton to open her port again to British trade, such a policy would be suicidal in that the enmity of all China against everything British would be aroused to a point where the whole of the great commercial and trade structure which Britons have raised through a century of effort would come clattering about their ears. The official position is best outlined in a reliable statement made to the United Press to the effect that the Government stil desires a peaceful settlement, with the admission that the means by which such a settlement can be obtained in the near future is not apparent.

Hongkong's Stand Governor Clementi, in a recentl statement replying to a communique by the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs at Canton, warned the Canton Government that any attempt to incite Chinese workers in the Hongkong colony to another strike would be met by drastic action. The Governor made these points:

1. That the Canton Strike Committee has been enabled to continue the present strike and boycott only by the use of armed guards who have intimidated the Chinese merchants and workers, preventing their having any relations with Hongkong. It is certain, the Governor said, that the anti-British boycott in Kwangung Province would not last another day but for the unlawful tyranny imposed upon the Cantonese people by the Canton Strike Committee."

Some Secret History And The League Of Nations

China's application for a permanent seat on the Council of the League of Nations serves to direct Nationalist attention to the struggle now centring on the admission of Germany to the League in the character of a Great Power and to the significance of her re-emergence as a positive force in international affairs. The League, it may be remembered, comprises 55 nations, ranging from the British Empire down to Hayti which is now the object of an interesting American experiment along the line of the British method of government "in the interest of the natives." The work of the League is done (a) through its Assembly which meets annually at Geneva on the first Monday in September and consists of 3 representatives from every Member State, each State having one vote; and (b) through its Council which meets normally four times a year. Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan as Great Powers are permanent members of the Council and the council an bers of the Council, and at present 6 other States are annually elected as temporary or non-permanent members. The election of these non-permanent members practically depends on France and Great Britain who of course dominate the entire work and influence of the League; and it is well-known that no State can be elected as a non-permanent member if it is persona ingrata to either Great Britain or France. The shabby role played by China in this connexion is instructive. It is a secret page of League history which ought to be made public in Chinese Nationalist interests. We vouch for the historical accuracy of the story because it is based on direct and first-hand knowledge of the

China At Geneva

President Woodrow Wilson having betrayed China on the Shantung question during the Versailles Peace Conference, Monsieur Clemenceau informed the Chinese Delegation that the question could be raised at the meeting of the First Assembly of the League of Nations. Thither a new Chinese Delegation travelled at the heels of the bright Chinese Statesboy, Vi-yuin Wellington Koo. In the midst of the latter's meditations on the theme, it was hinted to him that an atmosphere of peace should encompass and suffuse the first historic meeting of a League designed for the perpetual preservation of peace and goodwill among men, etc. This was at first disturbing but "diplomatic compensations" were soon proffered. In consideration of Chinese acquiescence to the side-tracking of the Shantung question, the Chief Delegate of the Chinese Delegation was elected Vice-Chairman of the principal Commission dealing with Disarmament whose chairman was the Chief Delegate of the British Delegation, Earl (then Mr. Arthur) Balfour. This nice arrangement apparently satisfied the Chief Chinese Delegate as it certainly pleased the Chief British Delegate who had to bear in mind the provisions of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance which was still in force. This move made the next step easy for the Chief Delegate of the French Delegation, M. Leon Bourgeois who was ably assisted by Rene Viviani. It was known that the Scandinavian Bloc, led by the Norwegian Lange—one of the greatest authorities on peace and disarmament-had decided to raise the formidable issue of universal disarmament. This was fiercely opposed by the French Delegation and the other Allied Powers who had recently and successfully fought the "war to end war."

A Passion For Tha "Can-Can"

But it was realised that the opposition could not openly be led by the French or any of the other protagonists who had allied themselves to kill Germans in the name of justice and righteousness and peace. The moral contradiction and mockery of it all, it was seen, would have shocked a world still stricken with grief for the loss of its manhood and its youth. There were, however, the Chinese who might do the job, particularly as their Chief Delegate was known to be anxious to join in the diplomatic "can-can" in the international cabarets of Western Europe. Him, Bourgeois and Viviani enmeshed; and on the memorable day when Lange pleaded for the world's disarmament, Geneva witnessed the spectacle of a Chinese insisting on the powder magazines of France, Britain and Japan being kept full and dry. To the single other Chinese who commingled with those who gazed on that immoral scene, there came disgust, humiliation and deepest disillusionment. One sees it again. Here rises Lange, tall, grey-haired, and full with the thoughts and dreams and imaginings of a lifetime spent in the service of peace. Swiftly he unfolds his thesis, setting it forth in a powerful dialectic and with unanswerable logic and thought; and then he warns the Bourbons and those who seem incapable of learning or of forgetting of the probable death of nations in Europe if the pre-war doctrine of armaments and military preparedness is not fundamentally revised. Then a dapper, young Chinese, with coal-black hair and immaculately laundered shirt, begins to speak. He opposes the great Scandinavian authority and proceeds to repeat what the French prompter has whispered in his ear-the fallacies and untruths which the fall of Athens and of Rome and twenty centuries of European history have exploded and exposed. But he received his reward. Before the Assembly ended, he was sitting on the Council of the League, playing the great game with the French who were busy sowing dragons' teeth in Central Europe.

China On The "Door-Mat"

China has long since ceased to be a non-permanent member of the Council of the League. She found herself on the "door-mat" directly France and Britain had no more use of her inside the League. And we do not suppose that the admirably worded application which Mr. Chu Chao-hsin is reported to have signed in a Reuter's message published in this paper yesterday, will induce either of the two dictators of European destinies to support the re-entry of China into the Council of the League either as a permanent or a non-permanent member. And in view of the revelation made in this article, China's re-admission to the Council is not of capital importance though there may be a change of political values on the subject when Nationalist China achieves her freedom and independence. Until the dawn of that new day, Chinese Nationalists need not vex themselves on the point, more especially for the added reasons which are indicated in the following analysis of the question relating to Germany's admission to the League of Nations and to a seat on its Council.

An Instrument Of Anglo-French Domination

Our conception and understanding of the League of Nations is that it is mainly an instrument of Anglo-French domination in Europe and of Imperialist policy vis-a-vis Soviet Russia and the rest of the world other than Japan and the Americas. In a sense the Mussolinian dictatorship in Italy is a challenge, though not a serious one, to this Anglo-French hegemony in the European system; and the entry of Germany into the League may also lead to a breach in the Anglo-French structure. If this is so, why have England and France agreed not only to Germany's admission as a member of the League but to her election to a permanent seat in the Council and thus ranking the "enemy" of yesterday as one of the Great Powers? It is known that this agreement has been forced by England upon France who has had to yield for a variety of reasons, including the pressure of the French war-debt to the English and the Riffian struggle. And England is playing the part of the "honest broker" because Germany is marked out to be a powerful tool in the great, ecumenical struggle between British Imperialism and Soviet Russia. There is a startling confirmation of this view of the "deal" in the statement made by the leader of Germany's potash trust to the United Press which we published in this paper yesterday. Captain Arnold Rechberg. having had his Potash Trust lately financed in London, declares openly and frankly that "Germany, France and Great Britain can now approach the solution of the Russian problem." And after emphasising the view that the "League of Nations is the bulwark and the instrument against the Russian peril," the Herr Captain asserts that "in a few years at most, Europe will need every gun and every cartridge against the Russian hordes.....lt will be a fight for life and death and the longer it is postponed by the European nations the fiercer it must be......Great Britain realizes more and more that the future of her empire depends on the extermination of Bolshevism. Moscow agent, riding the wave of nationalism, are spreading the Bolshevist creed throughout the Orient and Occident and only the quick decapitation of this pernicious snake can save Europe's colonies."

Marechal Foch's Solution We wonder if it has occurred to this unchastened "Hun" to pause and ask what precise role will Germany be permitted by her Anglo-French masters to play in the "extermination of Bolshevism." The present diplomatic struggle for the admission of Poland to a permanent seat on the Council of the League as well as for its enlargement in order to create a French "counterpoise" to Germany, might prove enlightening if the Herr Captain were not of the international breed that strives and battens on the blood and dead bodies of Europe's manhood. And for this reason, he would doubtless remain unmoved and unaltered in his demand for the "quick decapitation of Soviet Russia even though Marechal Foch would be certain to plan a campaign in which the cannon fodder would be the manhood and youth of Germany and attempt thus to solve by one masterly process in human slaughter-the "extermination of Bolshevism" in the interest of British Imperialism and a preponderant German population in the interest of French Militarism.

Waichiaopu Instructs Minister in Tokyo To Negotiate, Is Report

The Waichiaopu is reported to have telegraphed to Mr. Wang Yung-pao, Chinese Minister in Transacting a General Banking Business Issuing Drafts and Making Telegraphic Tokyo, requesting him to negotiate with the Siamese Minister there for the exchange of ministers between China and Siam pending the conclusion of a Sino-Siamese commercial agreement,

Negotiations have been going on for some time in Tokyo between Mr. Wang and the Siamese Banque Franco-Chinoise pour le Minister in connection with the proposed commercial agreement, negotiations have not turned out very successfully. But in view of the immense trade interests which the latter is reluctant to do which China has in Siam and the large number of Chinese residthere, the ment has decided to urge Mr. Wang to continue the conversations and to ask the Siamese desire to resign following his Minister to permit the exchange of ministers without waiting for the conclusion of the negotia-
